HEALTH CARE

- In 2016, Eliza Hamrick gave $50 to the ColoradoCareYes campaign
 - According to the Colorado Secretary of State, on Oct. 16, 2016, Eliza Hamrick of Centennial, CO, gave $50 to ColoradoCareYes. According to the Colorado Secretary of State, ColoradoCareYes' purpose was, "To gather enough petition signatures to get the ColoradoCare initiative on the 2016 ballot and to educate Colorado voters in order to secure passage of the initiative."¹
- In 2016, Eliza Hamrick supported a petition to bring Bernie Sanders to Colorado to fight for universal health care
 - In a July 27, 2016, Facebook post linking to a Change.org petition to "Bring Bernie Back to Colorado to Support ColoradoCare," Eliza Hamrick wrote, "Let's bring Bernie to Colorado to fight for universal health care!"²

- According to the petition backed by Eliza Hamrick, "Colorado is Ground Zero for the fight for Medicare for All, with Amendment 69, ColoradoCare, on the ballot this November. Over 150,000 residents signed the petition to get it on the ballot, and thousands of volunteers are working to win in November. Recent polls show a winning majority of Colorado voters are ready to vote YES on Amendment 69 and start the movement to true, universal health care."
 - According to the Change.org petition linked to by Eliza Hamrick, "This petition invites Senator Bernie Sanders to return to Colorado, where, as he said at the podium of the DNC, 'the revolution continues!'"

“One of Bernie Sanders’ primary planks in his campaign for president was to transform our health care system to a Medicare for All system -- true universal health care that covers everyone with full benefits and a reduced cost.

“Colorado is Ground Zero for the fight for Medicare for All, with Amendment 69, ColoradoCare, on the ballot this November. Over 150,000 residents signed the petition to get it on the ballot, and thousands of volunteers are working to win in November. Recent polls show a winning majority of Colorado voters are ready to vote YES on Amendment 69 and start the movement to true, universal health care. For more information, visit www.ColoradoCare.org.”³

➤ In October 2016, Bernie Sanders visited Colorado to support Amendment 69, saying, “If that proposal can win in Colorado, I believe that idea will spread around the country”

- In an Oct. 14, 2016, article, the Daily Camera reported, “The ColoradoCareYES campaign announced today that Bernie Sanders will speak at the University of Colorado on Monday in support of Amendment 69, his second visit to the campus in two years.

“Sanders, the independent senator from Vermont, will appear at CU's Farrand Field at 5 p.m Monday for a ‘YES on 69’ rally, according to a news release from the ColoradoCareYES campaign.

“Amendment 69 would establish a political subdivision of the state called ‘ColoradoCare.’ The measure was designed to establish a statewide program to provide universal health care coverage and finance health care services for Colorado residents.

“‘There is an important ballot initiative in Colorado which calls for a ‘Medicare-for-all’ health care system,’ Sanders said in a statement. ‘It is absurd, it is beyond belief, that here in America we remain the only major country on Earth not to guarantee health care to all people. If that proposal can win in Colorado, I believe that idea will spread around the country.’”⁴

➤ Under Amendment 69, the Colorado Care initiative, private health insurance would likely cease to exist in the state. Instead a 21-member elected board would administer the coverage on behalf of the government

- In an Aug. 5, 2016, article, KDVR reported, “The November election involves more than just presidential and congressional candidates. In Colorado, a number of ballot initiatives will take place, including a vote on Amendment 69.

“Amendment 69 would establish Colorado Care, a single-payer government-run health insurer that would be the first of its kind in the country.

⁴ Mitchell Byars, “Bernie Sanders hosting Amendment 69 rally at CU Boulder next week,” Daily Camera, Oct. 14, 2016

“We are going to lead the country to universal health care. We should have done this decades ago,’ said T.R. Reid, a leader in the movement and author of the New York Times bestselling the "Healing of America.’

“Under the plan, private health insurance would likely cease to exist in the state. Instead a 21-member elected board would administer the coverage on behalf of the government.”⁵

➤ ColoradoCare would cost more than $30 billion and it would be paid for with a 6.6 percent increase in employers’ payroll taxes and a 3.3 percent increase in employees’ payroll taxes

- In an Aug. 5, 2016, article, KDVR reported, “It would cost more than $30 billion and it would be paid for with a 6.6 percent increase in employers’ payroll taxes and a 3.3 percent increase in employees’ payroll taxes.”⁶

➤ Amendment 69 was “soundly defeated” by nearly an 80-20 margin

- In a Nov. 9, 2016, article, the Denver Post reported, “Amendment 69, the ballot measure known as ColoradoCare that would have created a universal health care system in Colorado, was soundly defeated Tuesday night.

“At 9:30 p.m., with more than 1.9 million votes counted across the state, the amendment was trailing 79.6 percent against to 20.4 percent in favor, according to preliminary state figures.

“Throughout the campaign, the measure had polled better with Democrats than Republicans. But even in left leaning Denver, the amendment was losing 2 to 1, according to early returns.”⁷

IMMIGRATION

- Eliza Hamrick was a founding member of Teachers United for Immigrant Rights, and she has testified at the Colorado capitol on behalf of immigrant rights
 - According to the Eliza Hamrick for Colorado House website, “Eliza has dedicated herself to empowering all students, families, and community members to have a voice in society, and the support and resources needed to succeed. She was a founding member of Teachers United for Immigrant Rights, which advocates for and conducts trainings for immigrant students and families. Eliza has also been active in reaching out to thousands of vulnerable individuals and families and registering them for vaccines, while also working at countless vaccine clinics sponsored by the Colorado Vaccine Equity Taskforce, that has vaccinated tens of thousands of our community members.”⁸
 - According to the Eliza Hamrick for Colorado House website, “Eliza has been a fierce advocate for public schools over the decades, which has earned her numerous accolades, including the John Chase Award for political action statewide, and the Adlai Stevenson Award for lifetime achievement. Eliza has been active with the Colorado Immigrant Rights Coalition, Colorado Schools Resist, and the American Friends Service Committee. She has also testified on numerous occasions at the capitol on behalf of students, teachers, education funding, and immigrant rights.”⁹
- In 2020, Teachers United for Immigrant Rights posted a picture on Instagram of a sign that read, “No one is illegal on stolen land,” using the hashtag, “#AbolishICE”
 - In a June 17, 2020, Instagram post, Teachers United for Immigrant Rights posted, “Nightly vigils outside of GEO Detention Center in Aurora at 8 PM! #freekelly #freethemall #abolishice”¹⁰

➤ In 2020, Eliza Hamrick, representing the Colorado Education Association, testified in support of Senate Bill 83, which would prohibit ICE from making civil arrests while a person is in the courthouse or on its property or if the person is going to or from a court proceeding

- According to the Colorado General Assembly, on Feb. 25, 2020, Eliza Hamrick, representing the Colorado Education Association, testified in support of SB20-083, a bill to prohibit the civil arrest of a person who is present at a courthouse or on its environs, or while going to, attending, or coming from a court proceeding and provides remedies.¹³
- In a March 24, 2020, article, the Daily Camera reported, “Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers will no longer be allowed to arrest people for civil immigration violations in or around courthouses in Colorado.

“Gov. Jared Polis signed Senate Bill 83 into law Monday. It prohibits ICE from making civil arrests while a person is in the courthouse or on its property or if the person is going to or from a court proceeding.

“The bill excludes civil arrests related to a judge's contempt-of-court order or other judicially issued process. A violation of the law could lead to a judge finding the agent in contempt of court, or the person could be subject to civil penalties from the attorney general.

“Rep. Leslie Herod, D-Denver, said the bill sends a message that everyone deserves protections, particularly at a time when immigrants are fearful of accessing services. That includes witnesses, defendants and victims of crime.

“The new law would allow immigrants who came to the country illegally to participate in the judicial process without worry about being deported.”¹⁴

➤ In 2017, Eliza Hamrick testified against a bill that would allow victims of certain crimes committed by people in the country illegally to sue politicians who refuse to cooperate with immigration authorities

- According to the Colorado legislature, on Feb. 22, 2017, Eliza Hamrick, representing herself, testified in opposition to HB17-1134.¹⁵
- In a Feb. 23, 2017, article, the Denver Post reported, “The national immigration debate flared up at the state Capitol on Wednesday over a bill seeking to allow victims of certain crimes committed by people in the country illegally to sue politicians who refuse to cooperate with immigration authorities.

“The legislation, sponsored by Rep. Dave Williams, R Colorado Springs, targets so called ‘sanctuary cities’ such as Denver, Boulder and Aurora, where police and other officials have said they won’t enforce federal immigration laws.

“House Bill 1134, called the ‘Colorado Politician Accountability Act,’ also seeks to make local law enforcement work with U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement if they suspect a person arrested is not lawfully present in the U.S.

“Williams touted the bill as a needed public safety measure, pointing to recent high profile crimes allegedly committed by immigrants in the U.S. illegally who had been detained and released by local law enforcement.”¹⁶

EDUCATION

- In 2021, Eliza Hamrick submitted a resolution to the Arapahoe County Democratic Party opposing Proposition 119
 - According to a Sept. 1, 2021, Arapahoe County Democratic Party resolution submitted by Eliza Hamrick and, Ilana Spiegel and the members of the Democratic Education Initiative, “Item V 2 of the Education plank of the Arapahoe Democratic Party’s Platform (ACDP-P) states: ‘We oppose vouchers and tax credits and other schemes which bleed off public education money to benefit private, parochial, or charter schools.’”¹⁸
 - According to the same resolution, “Therefore, be it resolved that the Arapahoe County Democratic Party oppose Proposition 119 (LEAP) as an unnecessary, unaccountable, and undemocratic use of public funds that will hurt our schools, and therefore our students”¹⁹
- Proposition 119 asked Colorado’s voters whether to raise the state’s recreational marijuana sales tax to bring in about $137 million a year for out-of-school educational programs for children ages 5-17 — with a priority on kids from low-income households
 - In an Oct. 10, 2021, article, the Daily Camera reported, “Proposition 119 will ask Colorado’s voters on Nov. 2 whether to raise the state’s recreational marijuana sales tax to bring in about $137 million a year for out-of-school educational programs for children ages 5-17 — with a priority on kids from low-income households.

“The measure calls for a 5 percentage point increase by 2024 on the state’s 15% sales tax for recreational marijuana by 2024 (starting with a 3% rate increase in 2022 and 4% in 2023). If passed, about $20 million a year would also go toward the enrichment programs from the Colorado Land Board Trust, according to a Common Sense Institute report, though that number could fluctuate depending on state land revenue.

“A new nine-member state agency — separate from the Colorado Department of Education and the State Board of Education — would administer the Learning Enrichment and Academic Progress Program, in which each eligible child would receive at least $1,500 in financial aid beginning in 2023. The money could be used for tutoring, support for children with special needs and learning disabilities, career and technical education training or other types of enrichment programs.”²⁰

ABORTION

➤ In 2022, Eliza Hamrick praised the Reproductive Health Equity Act for making Colorado a “sanctuary state”

- In a June 24, 2022, Facebook post, Eliza Hamrick wrote, “Today, the urge to come together and protect our rights and each other is even stronger than the urge to scream and grieve and give up hope.

“Colorado is now a sanctuary state thanks to the Reproductive Health Equity Act, but this is only statutory, and our reproductive rights are only as strong as our legislature’s pro-choice majority.

“As a mom, teacher, and now candidate, one thing has always been true: the moments that feel the heaviest are exactly the moments when our work is most important. Elections matter. Elections have consequences. Stand strong Colorado!”²¹

➤ The Reproductive Health Equity Act passed the Colorado legislature in 2022. The bill would clarify the use of contraception or to continue a pregnancy or have an abortion as a fundamental right, while a fertilized egg, embryo or fetus would not have independent or derivative rights

- In a March 23, 2022, article, the Julesburg Advocate reported, “The Reproductive Health Equity Act, by Democrat Sen. Julie Gonzales and Democrat Reps. Daneya Esgar and Meg Froelich, passed the Senate Wednesday after a long debate by a similar party-line vote as in the House.

“House Bill 1279 now heads to Gov. Jared Polis, after passing the Senate by a 20-15 vote and the House by a 40-24 vote. Democrats have majorities in both chambers, leading to the passage of the bill.

“Should it receive the governor’s approval, the bill would clarify the use of contraception or to continue a pregnancy or have an abortion as a fundamental right, while a fertilized egg, embryo or fetus would not have independent or derivative rights.”²²

➤ The bill allows access to abortion for pregnant women up until birth, according to the Colorado legislature

- In an April 5, 2022, article, the Daily Caller reported, “Democratic Colorado Gov. Jared Polis signed an abortion bill into law Monday that legalizes abortion as a ‘right’ in the state.

BOND AND MILL ELECTIONS

➤ On her campaign website, Eliza Hamrick says that she has helped to organize teachers and community members to go door to door for every bond and mill race in Cherry Creek School District since 1988

- According to the Eliza Hamrick for Colorado House website, “Teaching is a calling, and Eliza worked tirelessly for her students, peers, and the Cherry Creek School District community. She helped to organize teachers and community members to go door to door for every bond and mill race in CCSD since 1988. She also organized teachers and community members to support pro-public education candidates for the state legislature and for CCSD’s Board of Education over the decades. Keeping the CCSD community strong and supporting our students, teachers and families, has been a driving force in Eliza’s life.”²⁴

➤ In 1998, Cherry Creek School District administrators asked voters for a $10.5 million tax increase. The tax increase would add $78 to the tax bill on a $180,000 house

- In a Sept. 28, 1998, article, the Associated Press reported, “Cherry Creek School District administrators are asking voters for a $10.5 million tax increase, warning that millions will be cut from the budget without the additional funding.

“Because of enrollment growth and other factors, the district has been running in the red for two years.

“Administrators dipped into reserves for $6.8 million for the current school year.

“If the tax increase is rejected, the district will be an estimated $8.7 million short. Administrators say they will need to make cuts rather than going into reserves again.

“The tax increase would add $78 to the tax bill on a $180,000 house. There is no organized opposition to the measure.”²⁵

Editor’s Note: The tax increase was approved by voters.

➤ In 1999, voters in the Cherry Creek School District considered a $172 million bond issue, which would add $12 a year to the school’s portion of the property tax bill on a $203,000 house

- In an Oct. 11, 1999, article, the Associated Press reported, “Voters in the Cherry Creek School District on Nov. 2 will consider a $172 million bond issue, the largest in the district’s history and one officials say is needed to keep up with a booming enrollment.

²⁴ Meet Eliza, Eliza Hamrick for Colorado House website, Accessed July 25, 2022

²⁵ “Cherry Creek district seeks tax increase,” Associated Press, Sept. 28, 1998

“District officials said if the bond issue fails, they may have to resort to split sessions, cross-district busing and year-round middle and high school classes.

“The suburban district has grown almost 20 percent in the past five years and expects as many 7,000 new students by 2003. The biggest increase in the next five years will be at the high school level.

“The bond issue would pay for seven new schools and 24 building renovations or major mechanical updates. In addition, it would pay for additional computers and security improvements.

“The bond issue would add $12 a year to the school’s portion of the property tax bill on a $203,000 house, the average price for a home in the district.”²⁶

Editor’s Note: Voters approved the ballot measure.

➤ In 2003, Cherry Creek schools asked voters to approve a tax hike which would increase taxes by $60 a year for the owner of a home valued at $291,000

- In an Oct. 16, 2003, editorial, the Denver Post wrote, “Approving a tax hike for Cherry Creek schools may seem akin to giving Bill Gates a handout: Do they really need more?”

“It’s a common misconception that Cherry Creek schools are rich, because some of the district’s residents are wealthy. Actually, because of the complicated way the state finances schools and collects property taxes, a resident with a home in the district valued at $150,000 in 1994 actually pays nearly $300 less in school taxes today - even though that same home is now valued at $291,000.

“The growing Cherry Creek school district has begun to more than feel the pinch of declining revenues after having to cut $4.5 million from this year’s budget.

“With more than 6,000 new students expected by 2008, the 45,000-student district is in need of an infusion of cash.

“Voters should approve ballot questions 3A and 3B, which will not only help the district maintain the quality of its education - two-thirds of its schools are rated ‘high’ or ‘excellent’ by the state - but also help it prepare for future growth.

“Question 3A asks voters for a $14 million property tax increase to preserve the district’s low class-size ratio, attract and retain quality teachers with competitive salaries, and sustain its current academic programs. Without the mill-levy override, the district will be forced to cut millions more from its budget.

²⁶ “Cherry Creek voters to consider $172 million bond issue,” Associated Press, Oct. 11, 1999

- According to the same editorial, “If both are approved, the measures will increase taxes by $60 a year for the owner of a home valued at $291,000, which is typical for the district.”²⁷

Editor’s Note: The tax increase passed by approximately 53.5 percent to 46.5 percent.

➤ In 2008, Cherry Creek Schools asked voters for a $204 million bond issue and an $18 million override, which would cost $5 a month for a home valued at $336,000

- In an Oct. 16, 2008, editorial, the Denver Post wrote, “Cherry Creek Schools is in much the same position as Dougco and is asking voters for a similar financial commitment - a $204 million bond issue and an $18 million override.

“The bond money would build three elementary schools and a 6-12 math, science and technology center between Prairie Middle School and Overland High School; and it would pay for significant renovations of 18 schools built between 1958 and 1982.

“The cost would be $5 a month for a home valued at $336,000, which is not an unreasonable assessment. As in Dougco, home values are very closely related to the reputation of the much-vaunted school system. Voters would do well to give serious consideration to approving it.”²⁸

Editor’s Note: The ballot issue was approved by voters.

➤ In 2012, Cherry Creek Schools asked for a $25 million mill-levy override and a $125 million bond issue, which would cost the owner of an average home in the district about $56 a year in additional property taxes

- In an Oct. 15, 2012, article, the Denver Post reported, “Cherry Creek Schools is asking for a $25 million mill-levy override and a $125 million bond issue.

“After $40 million in budget reductions for the last three years, we will no longer be able to sustain and strengthen the excellence that the Cherry Creek School District is known for without a voter-approved budget override,” said Jennifer Churchfield, Cherry Creek board president.

“The bond and budget election would cost the owner of an average home in the district about $56 a year in additional property taxes, according to officials.

“The district said the mill-levy hike is necessary to keep class sizes from growing and would fund instructional materials, among other things.

²⁷ Editorial, “Yes’ for Cherry Creek Schools,” Denver Post, Oct. 16, 2003

²⁸ Editorial, “Money tight, but schools in need,” Denver Post, Oct. 16, 2008

“The $125 million bond issue would be used to fund renovations at buildings across the district, including expansions to Grandview and Cherokee Trail high schools in southeast Aurora.”²⁹
